The Central Free Dispensary

This is one of the oldest dispensaries in the city, the object of which is to furnish so far as possible the sick poor with medical attendance and medicine gratuitously, and to accomplish this work in the most faithful manner and at the least possible expense.

All feasible means are taken to exclude unworthy applicants from the benefits of this charity, especially those who are able to pay a physician.

It is economical to the taxpayers, for it keeps many of the sick poor and their families from becoming a charge upon the county, in the hospitals and almshouse.

It is dependent upon voluntary contributions for aid in its support, and therefore asks donations annually.

Send the management a donation if it affords you pleasure to do so.

MAR

In submitting the Thirty-Third Annual Report, the Directors of the Central Free Dispensary present a concise business statement of what has been accomplished during the year, leaving readers to draw their own conclusion whether the administration and the results are such as to justify renewed co-operation.

The objects are defined in the charter on page twelve. The demands on this Dispensary are made by that class of the sick poor who do not appeal to the county agent for aid. Chronic diseases are mainly treated. The working class is generally able to pay physicians' bills in acute cases of disease, but this is not the case in diseases and disabilities where extensive surgical operations are required, or where the treatment is to be one of long standing, or the case, otherwise incurable, requires long-continued supervision.

It is in this special field in which our work is eminently useful.

The best medical and surgical skill that could be procured in the Northwest has been placed at the disposal of such patients as required its aid.

The consulting staff of the Dispensary are members of the Faculty of Rush Medical College, and are the consultants and attendants in many obscure and difficult cases of disease and operations where skillful diagnosis and technique are required.

The consulting, attending, and visiting physicians, whose work is entirely gratuitous, have faithfully attended to their duties during the past year, and have materially advanced the interests of the Dispensary. The directors desire to express their heartfelt thanks to these gentlemen.

An institution which provides gratuitous medical services without restriction encourages imposture, fosters pauperism, and defrauds the medical profession of a just source of income. For these reasons the house physicians of the Dispensary state to every applicant that the benefits of this charity are intended for those who are unable to pay for the same. We have by this method gradually reduced the number of applicants for gratuitous services who are able to pay a physician. Still further to encourage self-respect and diminish pauperism, we continue to request patients, if they are able to do so, to contribute something, however trifling, towards the cost of maintaining the Dispensary.

The cost of each visit to the Dispensary during the year has been 171/4 cents, and the patients have voluntarily contributed towards this on an average of 5 3-10 cents a visit.

We thank the public for the sympathy and support it has shown our institution in years gone by, and are confident that it will not withhold its helping hand during the year.

Smaller contributions have lessened our resources and we find it difficult to meet the necessities of our unfortunate poor; 25,163 visitors were treated in the past year, and patients were provided free of charge with medicines, bandages, splints and other necessary articles.

We thank the public for the sympathy and support it has shown our institution in the years gone by and are confident that it will not withhold its helping hand during the year.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE METHODS OF CONDUCTING THE DISPENSARY WORK.

Any person in need of medical advice calls at the Dispensary and enters the reception room. He states his troubles to the house physician, and, if unable to pay a physician's fee, is directed to sit and await his turn on the benches of the proper attending physician. As he takes his seat he sees that out of two sides of the reception room there open nine smaller rooms, each of which is the office of an attending physician for a different class of disease.

Near the doors of these various rooms are grouped many persons who, like himself, are waiting an opportunity to have an interview with the particular physician for their own ailment.

His turn comes and he enters the room of the physician. The interview which follows does not differ from those which all persons have with their physicians. This physician is one who at other times of the day may be busy at his office, or visiting a wealthier class of patients, and for whose advice you would have to pay a considerable fee. Examination and treatment follow each other as in such cases, and the patient receives his prescriptions and directions.

As the patient leaves the room he goes to the druggist's office, on the other side of the reception room, to have the prescription filled. The patient receives his medicine, prepared and marked with full directions for use. He repeats his visits as often as necessary.

Cases of complicated character, and those that require serious surgical operations, are referred to our consulting physicians and surgeons, who institute such treatment as is indicated.

Fifty-eight physicians give their time gratuitously to treat and prescribe for all who apply during the appointed hours.

A patient visiting the Dispensary knows that when a member of his family is too sick to come to the Dispensary, there are a number of excellent physicians who answer, free of charge, any calls which may be registered at the Dispensary. The out-of-door work has been divided into districts, and a physician placed in each district to visit therein.

By these direct and simple methods a vast number of sick poor have been relieved.

HISTORY.

The Central Free Dispensary of West Chicago was organized in 1867, under the title of the Brainard Free Dispensary, and incorporated under its present title on April 1, 1873. At different periods for nine years it occupied small rooms at 232 W. Randolph St., 79 W. Madison St., 95 W. Randolph St., 136 N. Sangamon St., and 239 W. Van Buren St. It was supported at first entirely by private donations. These were supplemented from 1870 to 1884, and at intervals from 1890 to 1895, by an annual appropriation from the Board of County Commissioners from Cook County, ranging from $500 to $1,000.

During the two years following the disastrous fire of October, 1871, the work of the Dispensary was greatly increased by the increased number of destitute sick. Much of this work was performed under the auspices of the Chicago Relief and Aid Society, which, in 1873, donated to the Dispensary as a fund the sum of $4,000.

In 1871 the Herrick Free Dispensary was founded under the auspices of the Relief and Aid Society, to assist in relieving the destitution caused by the recent disaster. The Dispensary occupied rooms on Wright street near Twelfth street, and confined its task to the care of the sick poor in the southern portion of the West Division.

In 1873 this new Dispensary, to which the Relief and Aid Society had donated as a permanent fund the sum of $5,000, was united with the Central Dispensary under one organization. The medical boards of the two institutions having been united, the two superintendents continued in office, each with special duties.

By this union the Central Free Dispensary came in possession of an additional fund of $9,000 which was subsequently increased by other contributions to $19,500.

The income derived from this money is expended in the charitable work for which this organization was created. In addition to this, the Dispensary is the recipient of the interest accruing from a legacy known as the "John Phillips Fund," and left by the late John Phillips, Esq., in 1869, to the trustees of Rush Medical College, to be held in trust for dispensary purposes. This fund amounts to $7,743.81, and yields an annual income of $380.

In 1876 the Dispensary removed to its present spacious accommodations, in the lower story of the new Rush Medical College, corner of Harrison and Wood streets. These rooms were secured for a long term of years at a rental which can not exceed $660 a year. By special arrangements with the college, this rent has been since 1888 only $330 a year, and is now reduced to a very small nominal sum.

In return for the money thus given to the Dispensary, and for the accommodations provided at such low rent, is accorded to the students of the College the privilege of studying the diseases of the patients, and of observing their treatment by the Medical Board of the Dispensary.

The direct benefits which have been bestowed upon destitute sufferers can be but partially measured by the statistics herewith presented.

The indirect benefits cannot be measured by any statistics, nor by any standard, such benefits, we mean, which young men receive while pursuing the study of medicine, and which the communities in which they are to labor secure in the services of educated physicians.

The Dispensary is also assisted by the annual contributions of a number of generous citizens, who remember the poor in their sickness and misfortune.

With the great growth of the city has also grown the number of destitute and worthy applicants for this relief, and the income at the command of the Trustees is insufficient to meet the wants of the suffering multitude. It is hoped that the contributions will be largely increased to meet these needs.

INVITATION TO VISITORS.

All who desire to obtain a personal knowledge of the necessity of such an institution, its practical benefits to the sick poor, and its claims on the liberality of our citizens, are invited to visit the Dispensary and judge for themselves.

LOCATION AND HOURS.

The Dispensary is located on the northeast corner of Harrison and Wood streets, and is open daily—excepting Sundays and holidays, for the gratuitous treatment of the sick poor for medical cases, obstetrical cases, diseases of the nervous system, and for diseases of children from 10 to 12 a. m.; surgical cases, diseases of women, diseases of the skin, diseases of the nose, throat and chest, and diseases of the eye and ear from 1 to 3 p. m.

Destitute patients unable to attend the Dispensary will be visited, free of charge, at their homes.

Telephone to, or call at the Dispensary, when it is open. Telephone West 147.

The Drug Department is open from 9 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., from October to March; and from 9 a. m. till 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m., from March to October. Sundays and Holidays, medicines are dispensed from 9 to 10:30 a. m. The Dispensary is closed on Christmas, New Year, Fourth of July, Washington's Birthday, Decoration Day and Thanksgiving Day.

Members of the medical staff are not permitted to attend patients who are able to pay physicians.

Written complaints and suggestions for the benefit of the Dispensary, will be gladly received by the Executive Committee, through Philip Adolphus, M.D., Medical Director, 737 W. Madison Street.
